

Look after your Disks

Here are some hints and tips to help you to ensure long-lasting, error-free disk usage:

- X Do not expose your disks to bright light or to extremes of temperature.
- X Never let a strong magnetic field near your disks. Magnets, televisions, loudspeakers, telephones etc. are all dangerous.
- X Never touch the dark grey surface of the disk underneath the protective, silver shutter; even a tiny hair or a smear of grease can ruin the disk's ability to hold information.
- X Liquids also damage disks; don't leave them lying around where coffee/cola etc. could be spilt on them.
- X Don't leave a disk in the disk drive when you switch off your computer - always eject it first.
- X Never use your master disk for regular work. Always make a working copy first.
- ✓ Always label your disks and keep the information up-to-date.
- ✓ It is well worth running a good virus checker on any new disks to ensure that they are healthy.
- ✓ Keep your disks stored in a logical order in a quality disk box (or wallet!), away from kids and coffee.
- ✓ Make regular back-up copies of your disks, in a 3-disk cycle. Otherwise you will need to buy a good disk recovery package one day!
